

To Libby, On Your Wedding Day

On this special day we remember the giggling, sweet little girl
with cherub cheeks and twinkling eyes
and dark hair cascading in curl.

We remember the clogging classes,
something you and your father could share.
You blossomed and overcame shyness.
Mark and Libby---what a great pair!

Growing up, you played clarinet,
learned piano and sang in choirs, too,
were a runner and cross country skier
and basically lived in a zoo!
(There were cats, rabbits, guinea pigs and Andrew!)

You doodled and drew pretty pictures,
wrote sweet notes which bring me to tears---
still in a box of treasured memories
of times together over the years.

You excelled in high school and college
and met Marcus, the love of your life.
A Christian man, romantic and kind,
Marcus chose you for his wife.

You bring out the best in each other.
Your common goals can't be ignored
as you make a difference in this world
with your love and your faith in the Lord.

Our wishes are for a world of joy
on your glorious wedding day.
May God bless your marriage forever
in every possible way!

Forever and a day, we love you!
